

Helen, despite trying to be the best wife she could to her ex-felon husband, ended up divorced. But she survived and moved on, and eventually became engaged. While she waited for her approaching wedding day, her fiance's ex-lover resurfaced, and the ring came off her finger. When James, the third man in Helen's life came along, he made her forget all of her past heartache. Little did she know, she was about to face the biggest trial of her romantic life. Not only would James walk out of her life, her best friend since childhood would also betray her. Will things ever turn around for Helen? If so, how and when?
